High Risk Investment

Forex margin trading involves substantial risks. Forex margin trading exposes participants to risks including, but not limited to, changes in political conditions, economic factors, acts of nature and other factors, all of which may substantially affect the price of availability of one or more foreign currencies. Speculative trading is a challenging prospect, even to those with market experience and an understanding of the risks involved. Only funds that a person would allocate to high-risk investments (i.e., funds that if lost would not affect the person's standard of living or financial well-being) should be used in trading. In case a Client has used only conservative forms of investment in the past, forex trading might be inappropriate for such Client. A Client must understand that a total loss of all funds deposited can occur, as well as substantial amounts of additional capital, should the market go against Client's position(s).
